The Survey of Colleges Affiliated with a Religion

Many religious colleges feel that they have to perform a careful balancing act, to both serve their religious bodies, but also to serve the broader society, to promote a religious and ethical world view and yet attract students from other faiths (or no faith at all) who may not share that vision. How does your college perform this balancing act, if indeed it does?
1. During the past 10 years we have emphasized our Catholic and Franciscan tradition more than in the prior decades so there is not any attempt made to hide who we are or to balance it in some way
2. No balancing act. All programs are overtly religious and are presented as such.
3. We emphasize the broader aspects of the Franciscan values.
4. Not easy to answer in a survey like this. Our reason to exist is our religious mission. We are a small liberal arts college that engages students in an education that is mindful of the natural and spiritual worlds. The Swedenborgian faith emphasizes that God created both of these realms and that open inquiry is healthy and necessary.
5. does not feel this need
6. Applicants who do not profess to be Christians are not admitted.
7. Our faith is an all-faiths religion. All students can participate, regardless of students' faiths. This has helped us attract students from other faiths. In fact, our largest percentage are Catholic students.
8. All students are of our faith
9. We clearly state our world view (faith) and invite all who would like to study here to come.
10. n/a
11. Sponsor interfaith dialogue programs.
12. We prepare students for rewarding lives of leadership and service in a diverse and changing world, doing so from a theological foundation of radical grace that has place for all persons, even those who do not share this vision.
13. N/ A
14. The denomination with which we are affiliated is very tolerant of other religions and viewpoints. A balancing act has not been required.
15. mission work athletics international study
16. We try to be transparent about what the institution is, especially our religious faith. We invite students in to this community for discussions on things that include religion.
17. It limited enrollment to the faith.
18. We are very cognizant of this balancing act. We try to bill ourselves as faith based, but do not cram it down anyone's throat. We have multiple religions represented in both employees and students, including Judaism, Muslim, Catholic, many protestant faiths, etc. We celebrate or acknowledge some of the major non-Catholic, non-Christian holidays.

19. Our commitment to developing the whole student has remained stable and that includes attention toward the development of the student's faith.
20. We do not seek to grow for the sake of size. We are mission-driven and stay on course with that, attracting and interacting with students who choose to follow our path.
21. We take a very ecumenical approach welcoming to the community individuals of all faiths or no faith.
22. Our college is committed to carry out our mission of producing students who are effective Christians. This mission overrides any concerns regarding diversity.
23. it does and we are changing the way we conduct chapel daily and also try to have bible classes for students who have little background in bible.
24. Inclusive attitude Non-apologetic affirmation
25. It practices ecumenism.
